Learning of practice in Thai

Destination: Chiang Mai University Term: 2, September 2013 ~ 2, September 26

KobeUniversity, Faculty of Health science Michiha Yoshimura 3, September 2013: introduction to the Faculty of nursing, Chiang Mai University About education of nursing, I understood the difference between Thai and Japan. For example, in Thai, all nursing student must study midwifery. I surprised all nurse can do obstetric care, but I learned there is the not only difference of the thing that nurse can do, but difference of the medical situation. Thai nurse can do more things than Japanese nurse. But in Thai, nurse must renewal of license every 5 year. So I think quality of nursing and patients safety is kept.

4, September 2013: study visit ICU and CCU

Chiang Mai University Hospital has three ICU and one CCU. We observed medical ICU and CCU. What was especially striking was that there were many nurses for each patient, and there was no nurse call button. In Japan, all ICU and CCU has nurse call button because the number of nurse is few and nurse always can't stay around patient. So we thought it is good environment for patient that nurse always stay around the patient because patient can stay safely and can feel less anxiety.

5, September 2013: lecture and study visit orthopedic ward

I surprised this ward has many patient who has traffic trauma. But during my stay in Thai, I saw many people ride motorcycle without helmet and many Thai people don't keep the traffic rules. So I learned characteristics and environment of the country is related characteristics of patients.

And I almost surprised this ward has many infected patient. I think this is problem happen many reason. For example, there is shortage of instrument and difference of habit of washing hands. I think shortage of instrument can't solve easily, but if medical staff makes more effort to wash hands, it may decrease the infection. And more, I felt that Thai nurse is always smile and kind to patient. So I think if infection is decrease, Thai nursing is better than now.

6, September 2013: study visit pediatric ward

In this ward, patient's room is divided into three rooms by patient disease. We thought it is good system because nurse can take care of patient efficiently. And the family members who stay same room can share the experience each other and encourage each other. And the most impressive thing is that the children's family supports nursing care with nurse. For example, they measure the volume of children's urine and drinking water. In Japan, many hospitals have the system that all of nursing care is given by nurse without family care. This system's good point is it can be decrease the family's burden. But we think if Children's family supports nursing care with nurse like this hospital, they can be decrease children's anxiety and fear. And the family member and nurses can feel that they cure children's illness together.

And I almost observed practice of nursing student. I surprised that they can prepare the patient's drug and give the medicine patient. Thai nursing student can do many things and nursing skill is higher than Japanese one. Japanese nursing student has many things can't do, but they can think patient's individual history of living, habit, and character. And based these things, we take care of patient. So I learned that in Thai and Japan, nursing style is different.

7, September 2013: observing ban rom sai

Ban rom sai is the facility for the children who have mother-to-child infection of HIV/AIDs and who have lost parents by HIV/AIDs. There are 30 children, 2~18 year's old. When this facility was opened, discrimination against HIV/AIDs is strong. So the children of ban rom sai can't go to school and play with neighborhood children. But now, discrimination against HIV/AIDs is decreasing and HIV infected children who have lost parents is also decreasing.

Ban rom sai was managed by not only donation but also selling original goods and managing guest house.

8, September 2013: sightseeing temple and Sunday night market

About temple, I understood the difference of Japanese temple. For example, before I enter the temple, I must take off my shoes and I can't enter if I wear splendid cloth. I thought that the belief in religion is stronger than Japan.

At Sunday night market, I saw that many people who have handicap playing music and singing songs. So I think there is no or very few place that handicapped people work.

9, September 2013: sightseeing elephant camp and tiger kingdom

At elephant camp, I had nice experience. I saw and touched elephant nearby. And more I saw the elephant drawing picture and playing soccer, it was exciting for me.

10~13, September 2013: practice of community nursing

Most impressive thing for me in community nursing in Thai is about volunteer. In Thai, primary health care and public health care unite have volunteers. In Thai, nurse and nursing student cooperate with volunteer and support community health. At first, I was surprised that volunteer can do some nursing care. But I noticed that it was more surprised thing that there are many people working for community people without pay. In the situation of shortage of nurse, I thought that volunteer's work is very valuable. I thought it is because Thai people have strong spirit of service.

And I was also surprised that in primary care unit, nurses can diagnose prescription of medicine and some medical treatment because doctor doesn't always stay in the clinic. But there is the difference of the medical system. I thought that in Thai, in the surgery care unit like university hospital doctor play a key role, but in the primary care unit, nurse play a key role. From the above, I learned that medical system is deference by the difference of country's environment.

14~15, September 2013 Sightseeing in temple and art museum

16~20, September 2013: practice of obstetric nursing

I was surprised that antenatal clinic has education room for pregnant women and their family. And it is emphasized the benefit and the way of breast-feeding. I heard it is because the rate of breast-feeding is decreasing in Thai. In Japan, the rate of breast-feeding is also decreasing. But it is not so emphasized for pregnant women about breast-feeding. From the above, we think mother can consider about breast-feeding in early stage because the education of breast-feeding starts earlier than Japan. And I observed lactation clinic. This is the facility that the mother who has some problem to breast-feeding can do milking and keeps it freezing. When I observed this facility in postpartum ward, I thought it is good system that nurse not only recommend breast-feeding but also prepare the environment that can actually do breast-feeding.

23~25, September 2013: lecture and study visit Thai Spa and Thai massage I understood that in Thai, Spa is given for health and wellness. In Japan, Spa and massage is rather thought as leisure, so I was surprised at this deference. And about Thai massage, it is almost thought as a medical care. So Thai government recommend that every hospital should have the room to do Thai traditional medicine. So I thought this country has a belief to protect the tradition.

In such way, I learned many things for example characteristics of nursing, the role of nurse, education, lifestyle, culture and national characteristics for these four weeks. At first, we thought about only the difference between Thai and Japan, and we can't consider why the difference is happen. But through our practice and live in Thai, we came to be able to understand that why the difference is happen. And more, in the living of foreign country using different language, I felt the difficulty to express my mind in English. Therefore, I learned that the positive attitude is very important.

I don't forget to this experience, and I will make effort to be a nurse who has wide view.

I don't forget to this experience, and I will make effort to be a nurse who has wide view Thank you.
